NEW COURSE FOR ADULT WOMEN

Shelton State will offer a course this spring, one that is designed for the contemporary American woman who is interested in studying fiction by other women. The course is entitled "Fiction by Twentieth Century American Women Writers" and will be taught from 7:30-9:30 p.m. for five sessions on Monday evenings beginning April 29, 1985.

The course is designated as directed studies in the humanities and will offer one credit hour production from the college. The cost is $15 plus a $5 enrollment fee. There will be no cost to Shelton State students who are already enrolled full time at the college.

Instructor for the course is Dr. Paula Sue Hayes. Dr. Hayes will teach the course this summer at the Chautauqua Institution in Chautauqua, New York.

The course will explore the images and themes of fiction by American women of the twentieth century. It will scan women's prose from 1900 - the present with emphases on selections by Eudora Welty, Tillie Olsen, Zora Neal Hurston, Anne Tyler and other women writers.

To register for the course, contact the admissions office.

SHELTON'S SUMMER SCHOLAR PROGRAM

A summer honors program for high school students will be offered this year by the junior college division of the college. The program, which will be called Shelton's Summer Scholar Program, will offer a selected number of high school students the opportunity to earn college credit as well as to participate in a variety of enrichment activities.

Students will be chosen on the basis of academic ability, extra-curricular activities and personal recommendation. Students selected for the program may choose any class offered through the regular summer schedule of the college. The curriculum will be designed to meet the needs of the individual student. Deadline for applying for program is May 17. Students who are selected will be notified by May 24.

The program will begin June 17 and continue through August 28, 1985. The cost of the program is $150 for tuition and $50 for travel expenses. A limited number of tuition scholarships are available to those who meet the requirements.

In addition to regular courses, the students will participate in a variety of cultural, educational activities which include career and college counseling session, oriental cuisine dinner, instruction to contemporary theater, a canoe excursion, an archaeological trip to Moundville, a marine biology excursion at Dauphine Island, experiences in art forms, and computer awareness and access class.

For more information or to obtain an application form, contact Dean Howington or Ms. Dohrman.
